

Hello! Thank you for agreeing to this interview!

Could you quickly present yourself and what you are currently studying?

My name is Sive Gaudy and I'm currently studying anthropology at the London School of Economics.

Is the choice of the school related to the subject? Why that one specifically?

It is the best school for studying anthropology so I was happy when I got accepted. The school system is very different ! in France, you'd have an intensive schedule, here it is much more autonomous: you read and then debate about it in class, it is much more interactive. You would have one teacher for 5-7 students and then you have tutorials where it is one teacher for 2 students so It's much more about getting your ideas out rather than being forced into learning things by heart.

You told us you lived on campus and we heard it is expensive, can you tell us more about it?

It is expensive and considering Britain is getting out of the EU, it is going to be even more expensive for you guys...but it is worth it, yeah.

Do you have an idea about what you are going to do after completing your degree?

I am looking at consultancy, in a firm or in a non profit.

Thank you very much, we wish you the best!

Reportage réalisé en décembre 2019